She thinks that POTUS's safety will be in jeopardy for the duration and that his supporters will reduce the chances for a deep state attack that she thinks will come. Pretty big ask, lol. Especially if you're working or have kids at home.

Lol at people who think that a rally of one afternoon is going to change things.

We should occupy Washington for weeks, like antifa did with parts of Portland

Thousands of women took to the street during the Women Suffrage movement in 1900's and protested for a decade, and they got what they wanted. Hundreds of thousands of blacks took to the streets and "sit-in" during the Civil Rights movement in 1960's for a few years, and they got what they wanted.

Of course, the difference between those movements and the current election integrity movement is that we simply ask not for new rights, but for existing ones and for the way it used to be, i.e., fair and not stolen election. Everything has already been established in the book and enforceable under the law. The time to vote with ballots is over because that no longer means anything. Let the bullets fly.

Im sorry, if Trump can't come to the assist of his people with all the weight of his office then we have no reason to be supporting him or any one person.

I say that because I think people are thinking Trump's position is too weak, and they he's just going to be sitting on the sidelines while we revolt. Not going to happen.

Please, let's stay in Washington for as long as necessary.

Whoever doesn't absolutely need to go back home, just stay: we can organize better than any Pantifa or Occupy this, or autonomous zones.

We can ration the food, manage for sleeping space and waste cleanup.

The richest among us can provide for those who has less, not in communist way, but in a patriot way.
